Longo reports:

Waveland water system won't delay developments

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.
Waveland's Board of Aldermen authorized its city engineers, at a Wednesday night recess meeting, to proceed with a preliminary report and preapplication for a $900,000 Farmer's Home Administration (FHA) loan to expand the city's water system.

The board's decision came after Ray

Eaton, of Lewis-Eaton Partnership of Jackson, presented two plans for a new water tank and water line network primarily serving two new shopping centers under construction at US-90 and Nicholson Avenue.

Eaton calculated it would take approximately a year and a half to complete the water system extension with the 35-year, five percent FHA loan. Mayor John Longo said the time schedule for the water system would not effect development of the new shopping centers, but, "they would probably pay a higher insurance rate for about a year until the new system is completed to provide enough pressure for fire safety systems."

"They (FHA) are anxious to work with the board," the engineer said.

The aldermen decided to proceed with a plan which would place a water tank on US-90 fed by 10 inch line from an existing well approximately two blocks south of the highway.

Another plan would have placed the water tank next to the well, but Eaton explained, "With this plan you would get about one pound per square inch more pressure due to the two-foot higher elevation, but the US-90 site will be better for future growth and will save placing another elevated tank in that area in the future."

"The difference in the two plans is about $13,000. This is a negligible difference. With one plan you will have to buy land for the tank and in the other you will be buying more water line," Eaton reported.

"This water tank will beef up your entire water system. It's proven very feasible and has ranked with the best water systems we've designed so far," Eaton said.

Aldermen Louie Smolenski, left, and Jack Toomey review the proposals during Wednesday's recess board of aldermen meeting. The $900,000 water system will include a new water tower primarily serving two new shopping centers under construction on US-90. Marijuana epidemic here, warns Hancock sheriff

By RICH ADAMS
Some 60 adults and children attending a drug symposium Thursday night at the City-County Library learned of legal, medical, and judicial aspects of illicit drug use.

Speakers for the program, sponsored by the North Bay Parent-Teacher Organization and the Bay St. Louis American Federation of Teachers, were Hancock County Sheriff Ronald A. Peterson, County Youth-Court Referee Michael Haas, and Dr. William Bradford of Waveland.

Peterson said an "epidemic" of marijuana abuse has occurred out in Hancock County, adding parents "should be more concerned" about educating their children to the dangers of illicit drug use.

Assisting the sheriff in his presentation was Investigator Alvin Ladner, who holds a degree in criminology from the University of Southern Mississippi.

The sheriff displayed three glassed cases containing samples of marijuana, various pills, and paraphenalia which he usually displays in his office.

"Everything in this display is real," the sheriff explained.

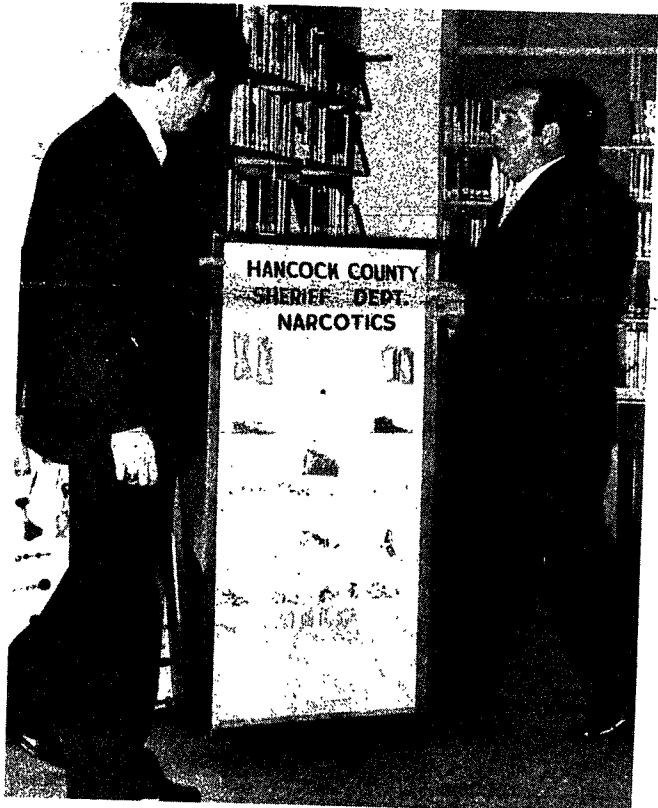

"A lid of marijuana is a clear plastic sandwich bag, about three fingers thick, which is how most marijuana appears for sale on the streets," Peterson continued.

"Going by the book, a lid is one ounce of marijuana and 40 to 60 marijuana cigarettes, or joints, can be made from one lid," he explained.

The sheriff explained that the cost of marijuana has gone from $15 to $40 a lid because paraquat spraying of Mexican marijuana fields has depleted the supply from that country, and most marijuana on the streets today is from Columbia.

Loiacano to receive scholar-athlete award

By RICH ADAMS
Bay St. Louis native Dale Loiacano, a runningback at Milsaps College, will receive an athletic-scholar award from the Jackson Touchdown Club and Mississippi Hall of Fame at the Mississippi Sports Hall of Fame Banquet Tuesday in Jackson.

Loiacano earned a 3.94 grade point average this year at Milsaps, an effort for which the Touchdown Club and the Central Mississippi Chapter of the Hall of Fame will cite the Bay gridiron specialist, according to Banquet Executive Secretary Bernard Blackwell.

Blackwell said Friday Loiacano will be among four athletes to be honored at the Hall of Fame Banquet, which will be conducted Tuesday night at the Coliseum Ramada Inn in Jackson.

The other schools represented for athlete-scholar awards are Jackson State, Mississippi College, and Hinds Junior College, Blackwell said Friday.

Loiacano played football at Bay St. Louis Senior High School, continuing his gridiron career while studying at Pearl River Junior College for a two-year stint.

He is presently a runningback on the football team while attending Milsaps. He is the son of Mrs. Joe Loiacano and the late Joe Loiacano of Bay St. Louis.

$3.5 million gas plant to be built in County

By ELLIS CUEVAS
Crystal Oil Company of Shreveport, La. will construct and operate a 94 million cubic feet-per-day natural gas processing plant in the Waveland Field of Hancock County.

Dennis Casto of Denver, Colo., project engineer, said the $3.5 million plant "will be the largest plant of this type in Mississippi."

Tulsa Pro-Quip of Tulsa, Okla. and Delaney Construction of Natchez will be contractors for the large plant, according to Casto.

"The plant will be located in the Waveland Field across the street from the scrub plant now in operation off Texas Flat Road. The scrub plant removes acid gases and CO-2 from the raw gas. The gas will move to our plant for the removal of the natural gasoline, butane and propane which will be shipped out together via truck for further refining," the project engineer said.

"The plant will be one of the most modern in this field, one of the largest and simplest to operate. It will utilize four permanent employees as it is computer operated," Casto said.

The plant will extract 50,000 gallons daily of natural gas liquids from gas delivered by various producers in the Waveland Field which includes some 20,000 developed acres.

It will take about four months for construction as much of the equipment will be the skid type, according to Casto.

The operation is known as a 'pipeline straddle' plant and construction is to start in April, Casto allowed.

Crystal Oil Company has one plant in Monroe and another at Creole, La.

Local hearing reveals objections to GRPC bridge proposition

By ELLIS CUEVAS

In a public hearing Thursday night at the Bay Council Chambers sponsored by the Gulf Regional Planning Commission, (GRPC), strong opposition was voiced against the changing of the Bay bridge from four to two lanes.

The public hearing was to air a proposed regional bikeway study for the entire Gulf Coast with several hearings already held in other cities. Primary discussion was for the Bay St. Louis and Waveland communities.

Jim Head, executive director of GRPC, feels the bridge will stay as it is, saying, "We listen to what you say, that is why we are here. We are trying to bring out things here which we never heard of before."

Council President Pete Benvenuti and Councilman Fred Wagner were the only Bay officials at the hearing. There were numerous other conflicting meetings being held Thursday night.

Benvenuti presented a letter on behalf of Mayor Larry Bennett who was unable to attend due to a previous commitment.

Bennett stated in his letter, "It is my humble opinion that this study is the most ridiculous survey that I have heard of in some time. I feel that tax dollars could be and are certainly needed in more important matters."

"...In the city alone we are in desperate need of sewage, water, street restoration, drainage, etc."

Benvenuti also commented that he was asked by Waveland Alderman Barbara Rappold to state that city's board of aldermen had discussed the proposal and is against the changing of the Bay bridge.

Numerous residents in attendance voiced concern about the bridge traffic with one commuter giving a personal survey she made during several days in trips across the bridge on numbers of vehicles traveling in the opposite direction.

Head said the bridge proposal was simply an 'innovative idea' offered for consideration and that they actually had about ten all together.

The public hearing was chaired by Stephen Higgins, acting superintendent of transportation for GRPC, who presented a film. The film gave examples on how cities in Maryland developed bikeways.

The bikeways are divided into several categories, and can be used in conjunction with roadways already in use with minor adjustments for one class.

Benvenuti commented, speaking as a private citizen, "If you start messing around with the Bay Bridge you'll set us back 30 years."

Mrs. Virginia Watt of Bay St. Louis told the GRPC representatives, "Keep your hot little hands off the Highway 90 bridge."

Eddie Gobert, Waveland commented, "I appreciate the planning, and there is a need for planning. We need to upgrade the class of living. I will look at it (meaning the Bikeway Study Proposal) and probably comment in writing."

Higgins had said GRPC was interested in written comments.

It was suggested a bikeway along Central from Washington Street in Bay St. Louis to Buccaneer State Park would be an ideal path. Use of the power line path was suggested and feeder lanes could come from directions.

Use of Beach Boulevard is included in part of the bikeway proposal, but, some in attendance at the hearing said it would be foolish because of the amount of sand blown across the road and it would have to be continuously cleaned.

The proposal did not include North Beach Boulevard in Bay St. Louis as a possible route.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Vegas were among those voicing concern for the need of bikeways as well as the majority of the audience.

Mrs. Vegas said, "I use a bicycle for exercise, riding to work and running errands. I do not like my children riding anymore because people in autos are not recognizing the bike riders."

Mr. Vegas suggested, "You have an area on the beach side of the guard rail in the Cedar Point area which could be used as a bikeway with very little improvement."

Milfred Lady, tourism chairman for the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce, allowed, "I like the idea of the bikes, you only have to look at Europe. The idea would eliminate some of the automotive traffic and cut the cost and use of fuel."

In a letter addressed to the Chamber on December 20, by Stephen Higgins, a request was made seeking comments on the idea of the bikeway by 'converting the outer lane on either side of the bridge into a shoulder and a bikeway."

An item of much discussion was the question who would pay the tab for such a project.

Higgins told the group the bikeways have two major funding sources—local and federal tax dollars on 75-25 percent basis using Federal Aid Urban System funds.

In order for the bikeway system to become a reality it must be accepted by local governments.

"You r downtown tank is at a lower elevation. So we figured in a recirculation system so the downtown tank will be full at all times," the engineer stated.

Referring to the route the 10 inch water line would follow to the water tank, Eaton explained, "We're showing the least line of resistance. We could have cut through some of the streets. This is the most expensive way, but considering plumbing and other utilities we would encounter, is a much easier way in the long run."

"We hope we can cut the route and make the plan more economical," Eaton added.

Mayor John Longo said, "If we can get the project over with a five percent loan that's fine."

"Check into land acquisition because people will be asking thousands of dollars more for their land if we do this," Longo requested.

Eaton said, "You will need about one-half an acre of land for the tank."

Alderman Barbara Rappold asked, "Why couldn't we use existing water lines with just a new tank?"

Eaton replied, "We have to get water right to the shopping centers (along the north side of US-90). Using existing lines would not increase pressure at all."

In other business during the 7:30 p.m. meeting at City Hall, the aldermen:

—Presented Mr. and Mrs. Ducre Bourgeois a 'Distinguished Citizenship Award' on their 50th wedding anniversary;

—Accepted low bid on the Lee Morris home which is part of the Middletown Rehabilitation Project for $8,365;

—Approved six more houses for inclusion in the Middletown Project as requested by Rehabilitation Officer Laurence Burns. The homes selected belong to Julian Thomas, Wesley Dorn, Ethel Simpkins, Allen Champaign, Roland Galivan and Pauline Harrington;

St. Martin defeated second place SSC in the 440 yard relay with a time of 45.4 seconds.

Betanzos of SSC and Gilbert of St. Martin tied in the 100 yard dash with a time of 10.4 seconds.

Lloyd Henry of Hancock was third.

Schexnayder of St. Martin, who Coach Jones heralds as "possibly the best miler in the state," recorded a 4:27.5

minute time to defeat teammate Glasenapp and SSC's Hayden.

The Yellowjackets' Schexnayder also took first place in the 880 run with a time of 2:10.6, followed by Helveston of St. Martin and Jeff Brokeman of Stanislaus.

Stanislaus took top slot in the 440 yard dash as Martin noted a 54.6 second winning time.

Logan, also a Rock-A-Chaw, ran second in the race.

In the 220 yard dash McCurvey of the Yellowjackets came in first with a 24.3 second time, followed by Pfister of SSC and Henry of the Hawks.

It was so good to see so many Bay St. Louis and Waveland residents attend the public hearing Tuesday night at the bike-way hearing.

The hearing sponsored by the Gulf Regional Planning Commission is the way they receive input from the public in projects they are involved.

With the continued rise in the cost of fuel, we have an indication many of us will be oiling the old bikes once again.

I guess when we were kids the amount of students in high school who rode bikes were probably more than those who use cars today.

The different classes of bikeways made it possible for us to have some in our communities for very little expense in using some of the road already available.

We hope that Gulf Regional continues to pursue the project. Indications are that the two-laneing of the Bay Bridge is down the tube, it was only one of several possibilities.

Monday night there will be a very important meeting at the cafeteria of St. Rose on Necaise Ave., Bay St. Louis, about the new voting machines.

Circuit Clerk Henry Otis will give a demonstration on voting using the new system which was purchased recently by the Board of Supervisors to upgrade our election systems.

The meeting will start at 7 p.m. and is sponsored by the Concerned Citizens, veterans and civic organizations.

Census time is almost here. In a few days we will be receiving in the mails census forms to be filled out by each household.

We need everyone in Hancock County to fill out the Census form and return them on census day, Tuesday, April 1, 1980.

It is much to our advantage to have each person counted.

There will be a Cancer seminar Monday, 8 p.m. at the conference room of Gulf National Bank.

The Theodore S. Price Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary of Post 3253 and the American Cancer Society are co-sponsors of the program.

We hope many of you will plan on attending this informative program for both men and women.

Talk about a good time! We are told by the folks planning the $1.98 beauty contest Tuesday night - some really big excitement is in store for those who attend.

This beauty contest is being held by the local Heart Fund in order to raise needed funds. Mrs. Brenda Karl said Friday they are hoping enough money can be made Tuesday to help make the local group's quota.

The beauty contest will be held at the Dock of the Bay, Bay St. Louis and will start at 8 p.m. Tuesday, March 25.

We hope there will be a big community support to the American Heart Fund.

If you have any questions give Mrs. Karl a call at 467-8010 or 467-4188, she is the County chairman for 1980.

Tuesday night there will be a very important meeting on recommendations on utility rates, (what we pay for gas, water, sewerage) at the Bay Council Chambers.

Barbay Engineers who has been doing the survey will make known their recommendations to the Bay Council.

The Concerned Citizens group will be there we hope and anyone else in Bay St. Louis who has to pay utility bills is invited.

MISSISSIPPI ECONOMIC COUNCIL - THE STATE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Dr. Peter Petersen, an exponent of the free enterprise system and member of the West German Parliament, will address the noon luncheon session of the Mississippi Economic Council's 31st Annual Membership Meeting in Jackson April 9.

The announcement was made by MEC President Benton Cain, a Jackson businessman, and the Annual Meeting chairman, W.C. Shoemaker, a Kosciusko publisher.

Dr. Petersen joins Dr. Zbigniew Brzezinski the President's national security advisor, who will speak at the banquet session. The theme of the evening session will be "The World Today-American Alternatives," according to Shoemaker.

"We are very pleased that Dr. Petersen will address the gathering," said Cain. "He is widely known as an exponent of free enterprise and his address will include comparisons of the American enterprise system with those of other countries."

The theme for the luncheon session is "The American Enterprise System-A View from West Germany."

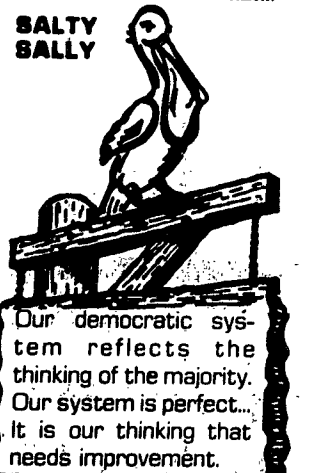

Dr. Petersen, of Leonberg, Germany, served in the German Army and has been involved in professional marketing research in Germany and in the Middle East.

Since 1965 he has served in the Federal Parliament of West Germany where he has served on the Committee for Economic Cooperation and the Committee on Defense for the European Community.

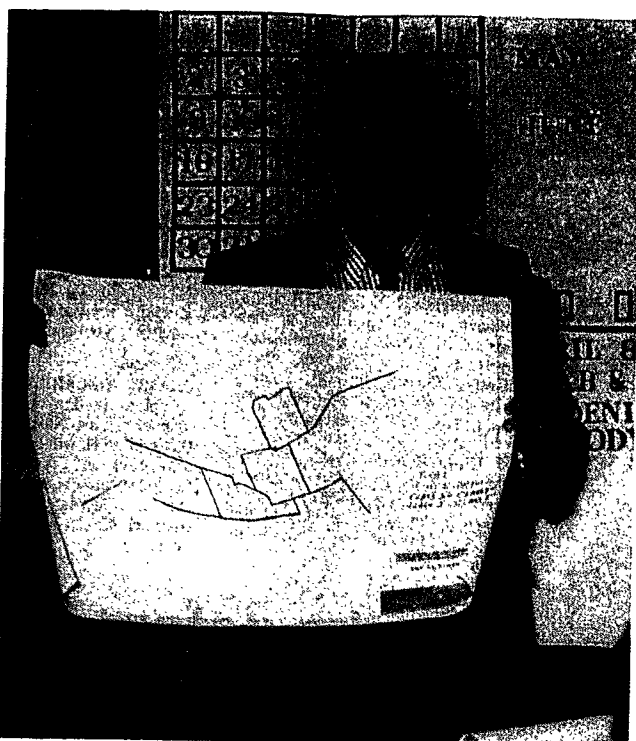

His political affiliations have included those German Chancellors of the post-war era who made possible the "German Economic Miracle"—Professor Ludwig Erhard and Dr. Konrad Adenauer.

"This year's Annual Meeting is designed to give members a close look at issues affecting our state, the nation, and the world," said Shoemaker. "The meeting is open to all MEC members, business associates, friends, family members, and others interested in Mississippi."

All sessions will be held at the Holiday Inn Downtown in Jackson.

Our democratic system reflects the thinking of the majority. Our system is perfect. It is our thinking that needs improvement.

A PLAN FOR BAY ST. LOUIS—Stephen Higgins, acting superintendent for transportation for the Gulf Regional Planning Commission, explains the various types of bike routes they propose for Bay St. Louis at a Public Hearing Thursday night. A plan for Bay St. Louis was also explained. Most people attendance agreed better and safer roadways are needed for bike riders. Higgins told the group that all of their comments would be taken under consideration. (Staff photo-Ellis Cuevas)

BIKEWAY PLANNING—The Gulf Regional Planning Commission held a bikeway planning hearing at the Bay St. Louis Council Chambers Thursday night. Bay St. Louis and Waveland residents voiced concern about an original report on the possibility of using one lane on each side for a bikeway on the Bay bridge. Jim Head, executive director of Gulf Regional, said the bridge proposal was only an 'innovative idea' and that they really could not do anything with the bridge. Milfred Lady, Hancock County Chamber of Commerce tourism chairman, was one of many in attendance. (Staff photo-Ellis Cuevas)

The Bottom Line

Candid Answers To Your Questions About Advertising and Business Topics.

By S. GALE DENLEY
Associate Professor of Journalism
University of Mississippi

I've decided the only way to get ahead is to go in business for myself. What are my chances? Tired of Working For The Other Man.

Dear Tired of Working: More than a third of businesses started fail within three years—the toll is one-half by five years. Margin for error is slim. You don't get three strikes; it usually takes a homerun on the first pitch.

The main reasons why new ventures fail, outlined by Changing Times, include: Inexperience—most beginners know only a part of the business. Success calls for knowledge of all. Sales knowledge won't make up for buying, pricing, hiring, bookkeeping ineptness.

Undercapitalized—There never seems to be enough money. One of the main oversights is not having enough to live on for a year or two outside of the business. Also many use needed capital to buy rather than lease and fail to find the best sources of funds at the best rates.

Not Planning—Experts recommend a two-year plan of where to go and how to get there. Orderly growth depends on reviewing the plan every three or six months and adjusting to business conditions.

Poor Bookkeeping—Prosperous businesses all have good records—those on the skills usually don't. Good records show how to cut costs, save on taxes, when to buy and when to sell, which lines to push and which to drop, how much to mark up or down, etc.

Poor Marketing—Few goods or services sell themselves. Some beginners don't really know if there is a market, and if there is, who it is. Advertising requires a knowledge of who the prospects are and what are their special needs.

Not A Boss—Successful managers manage money and workers. The workers produce. Working managers usually aren't managers in the true sense.

With these cautions, have a go at it. Enough money and enough planning is a good start. A little work is also necessary.

How important is location to a new business? If I get a prime spot, I'll cut into my promotional funds. About To Start.

Dear ATS: Location is important—prime in the usual sense is not. A convenient, attractive site is probably better than downtown, if there is the usual traffic congestion with the resultant consumer flight to shopping centers and malls.

Even so, the value of location fluctuates with changing demographics of the city. But with your original promotion and consistent follow up, shopping pattern changes should not affect you too much. For customers, even with the current energy shortage, don't mind driving a short distance if they will have a safe place to park.

Hearing on barrier islands bill opens this week

March 21, 1980

The Editor
Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis

Dear Sir:

From Maine to Alaska, including the Great Lakes, over 300 barrier islands protect human lives and property on mainland coasts from the effects of severe storms.

Barrier islands also provide the setting for the highly productive estuaries and bays where sport and commercial fish are nurtured and grow.

The ecology of many of these islands, however, is too fragile to support heavy population concentrations without serious damage to plants, wildlife, dunes, and marshes.

On 24 and 31 March, 1980, Representative Philip Burton will convene hearings on Bill H. R. 5981 in Washington, D.C.

The purpose of this bill is to provide federal protection for the remaining undeveloped and unprotected barrier islands along the eastern and gulf coasts of the United States.

The legislation is directed towards providing "necessary protection for the unique natural, ecological, and environmental values" found on these islands by direct acquisition.

Barrier islands are highly dynamic and unstable. They shift and reform over the years in response to winds, tides, the gradual melting of glaciers and slow rise in sea level.

The construction of permanent buildings and homes on barrier islands had been shown to be an exercise in futility, as Hurricane Frederic recently demonstrated.

Yet for many years now, the federal government has effectively subsidized this waste...and at the taxpayers' expense.

This legislation would prohibit federal development subsidies for barrier islands—subsidies for roads, sewerage systems and erosion control—as well as ending federal flood insurance and disaster relief subsidies.

If a private citizen chooses to build a beach house in an area that is subject to flooding and vulnerable to severe storms, that is his or her right, but the taxpayer should not be asked to foot the bill for such speculation when nature does what comes naturally.

Programs which prevent future development of barrier islands and beaches will also protect the taxpayer from underwriting such speculative investments.

Concern over barrier island development is not new. Perhaps Christ said it best almost 2,000 years ago when he referred to the foolish man which built his house upon the sand; And the rain descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house; And it fell: And great was the fall of it!" (St. Matthew, Chapter 7, 26-27).

Passage of this bill will minimize the loss of human life due to the hazard of permanent barrier island living and construction. It will limit your tax liabilities due to speculative and dangerous construction on barrier islands. It will also help to preserve for future generations unique national resources.

I urge you to support this most important legislation. Your feelings and views, regardless of your position, should be brought to your representative's attention. Correspondence should be sent to the Honorable Trent Lott, U.S. House of Representatives, Washington, D.C. 20515.

Better still, send a Mailgram (a 50-word message costs only $2.80) or call 202-224-3121 and ask for your representative's office. Urge him to support the Bill (H.R. 5981) to protect America's barrier islands.

Sincerely yours,
Stephen V. Shabica

SPECIAL REPORT: Economic Challenge

Serious problems in our national economy continue to mount, with inflation eroding the buying power of the American dollar at an alarming rate.

One major battle shaping up in our efforts to fight inflation and bring stability to the nation's economy concerns cutting back on wasteful federal spending and bringing the budget into balance. This would help eliminate the huge deficits we have been running annually since 1969 and clearly signal that we finally have a national policy of fiscal responsibility.

Since the present Administration took office in 1977, the annual rate of inflation has jumped to 20 percent. The prime lending rate has been increased to a record high—nearly 18 percent. During this three-year period alone, federal budget deficits total over $116 billion. Many experts are convinced such unrestrained federal spending is the chief cause of our country's economic illness.

Up to this point, the majority in Congress has lacked the will power to say "no" to ever-increasing demands for money from the federal treasury.

Now, however, in the face of the latest series of grim economic reports, those in Congress and the Administration who have failed to face reality are beginning to awaken to the necessity of balancing the budget and effectively restraining federal spending.

We are scheduled to vote soon in the Judiciary Committee on a proposal I am sponsoring to mandate, by a Constitutional amendment, that the government live within its means. This would require the federal budget to be in balance unless a national emergency dictated otherwise. For the first time in history, we are close to having a majority of votes in a Senate or Congressional committee for such a resolution.

Also, I have introduced legislation to create a short-term National Economic Commission to seek immediate solutions to some of the serious economic problems facing our nation. In addition to those issues we have already discussed, such things as large trade deficits, declining purchasing power, higher unemployment, declining productivity and decreased savings are having an unfavorable impact on the economy.

This ten-member, blue-ribbon panel would be drawn from experts in the business, academic, labor and government fields, and would function as an independent national advisory body.

The National Economic Commission would have up to nine months to study our economic problems and make a report, with recommendations for possible solutions, to the Congress. It would then go out of business.

It is going to take strong medicine to restore the economic health and vitality of our nation and reconstruct the buying power of the dollar for hard-pressed American families.

The American people are going to have to believe that inflation can—and must—be whipped. There are no magic solutions, and all of us must be willing to make sacrifices in various ways for economic stability to be regained.

Our nation has met such challenges before. I am confident that we can do it again in solving our economic problems. But it will take a unified effort by the American people and our national government.

NORDA scientists develop first ocean forecast system

The world's first ocean forecast model designed for operational use has been developed by the Naval Ocean Research and Development Activity (NORDA) at the National Space Technology Laboratories in Hancock County.

Called the Thermodynamical Ocean Prediction System (TOPS), the numerical model is intended to provide daily 72-hour forecasts of the temperature structure of the upper ocean down to 400 meters (1500 feet) throughout the Northern Hemisphere.

The model has been delivered to the Fleet Numerical Oceanography Center (FNOC), Monterey, California, in a semi-operational mode to undergo formal testing and evaluation.

Temperature fluctuations in the upper ocean occur daily, even hourly, and can critically affect the transmission or reception of acoustic signals by refracting (bending) the paths of sound waves. The Navy's ability to anticipate these changes can substantially improve the performance of sonar systems.

In addition, ocean temperature forecasting can have an important impact in the future on weather forecasting, commercial fisheries operations, ocean thermal energy conversion and pollution control.

TOPS is designed to be coupled with the meteorological forecast system already in operation at FNOC. That model predicts air temperatures, the flow of heat to and from the ocean, rainfall, and the stress of wind velocity on the sea surface.

By receiving inputs from that model, TOPS can account for the effects on the upper ocean of solar heating and atmospheric disturbances, including the passage of warm and cold fronts. Such events can greatly modify upper ocean temperatures over vast areas during a period of 72 hours.

TOPS for the first time will be able to provide the fleet with real-time predictions of changes in the subsurface environment generated by these atmospheric conditions.

NORDA scientists constructed the computer model by formulating conservation equations for temperature, salinity and current velocity. The data used by the model includes the many ocean temperature measurements made daily throughout the Northern Hemisphere by ships and aircraft dropping expendable bathythermographs (XBT's) plus sea surface temperature observations made by satellites.

This data is used by FNOC to make a daily analysis of the ocean thermal structure, which provides the initial temperature field for the TOPS forecasts. The salinity input is obtained from a daily interpolation of FNOC's monthly climatological patterns collected over a period of many years.

Informal and limited test and evaluation studies of the TOPS model have been conducted by NORDA with encouraging results. NORDA will continue to improve and refine the model through forecast verification studies.

The work was performed by NORDA's Numerical Modeling Division headed by Dr. Aubrey Anderson, with the model program supervised by Dr. Steve Piacsek.

Baptist tithes reach $31 million mark

Tithes and offerings of the churches of the Baptist Missionary Association of America are up to a new record level according to a recent report from Baptist News Service, an agency of the BMA of America.

More than 31 million dollars were given to all causes from cooperating churches in 30 states, for the year ending September 30, 1979, according to the news service.

Of the $31,075,115 total gifts, $4,472,464 were given to home and world missions causes, $1,805,312 went to interstate and foreign missions, the rest was for local and state missions and missions related causes.

The churches of the Baptist Missionary Association of America are now preparing for the 1980 session of the body which will be convened in Little Rock, Arkansas, April 21-23.

Cooperating churches include more than two hundred from Mississippi, some 26 or more from Pearl River and Hancock Counties. Each cooperating church is entitled to be represented by not more than 3 "messengers."

By S. GRADY THIGPEN

Mr. Harvey Burks, when 83 years old, talked about his boyhood recollections of old times along Pearl River:

"Back when I was a small boy, more than 70 years ago, my father hired negro labor on his farm up northeast of Henfield. The whole family would come - papa, mama, and all the children - and they would come early, in order to get breakfast.

"They would work until up close to noon, eat dinner, and then, after the days work was done they would stay on for supper. One of my earliest recollections was hearing the old negroes talk of old times, of the slavery days which had not long been ended back then.

"I would sit on the back door steps and listen to them talk, while all the time fighting mosquitos. I heard them tell stirring tales of blood hounds, or, as they called them, 'nigger' dogs. "One old tale that I heard many times was about a white man named Fountain who had a brother-in-law named Breakfield who had such dark complexion that he would pass for a mulatto.

"As the story went, Fountain and Breakfield would go off on a long trip where they were not known. Fountain would pass himself off as the owner of the negro slave with him, but who was in reality his brother-in-law.

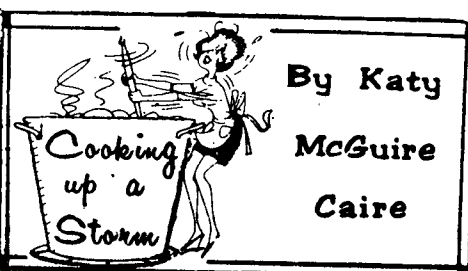

"Fountain would offer Breakfield for sale, recommending him as an unusually good worker. He had forged papers to show that he was 'the owner of Breakfield. He would offer to let anyone interested in buying him, try him out for a few days to see if he was a good worker and he really was.

"Fountain would sell Breakfield for $1,000 in cash and then come on back to his home up on Pearl River. Of course, in making the sale his papers would show he was from some distant place, maybe over in Alabama or somewhere else.

"In a few weeks Breakfield would escape and come back home and they would split the $1,000."

In telling this old story, it was claimed that sale and his subsequent escape took place a number of times - in fact, it was claimed that they made a living this way for many years.

It's rice around the clock at our house - I like rice cakes or fritters with cane syrup or hot pepper sauce for breakfast; cold rice doused with hot sauce and whatever I find in the refrigerator for a late night snack; red beans and rice and so on, in addition to all the other delicious rice dishes.

Rice is also a fine budget-stretcher for the gourmet on a shoestring, or any other gourmet for that matter, as relatively small amounts of seafood, chicken, meat, etc., when combined with rice, make a fine feast for even the most finicky eater.

For instance, the Creole-Cajun Jambalaya, the Paella of Spain and Mexico, the Pilau of old Charleston, and so on. And cold rice makes a delicious salad well seasoned and combined with seafood, poultry, etc., in either a vinegar, and oil or mayonnaise-based dressing.

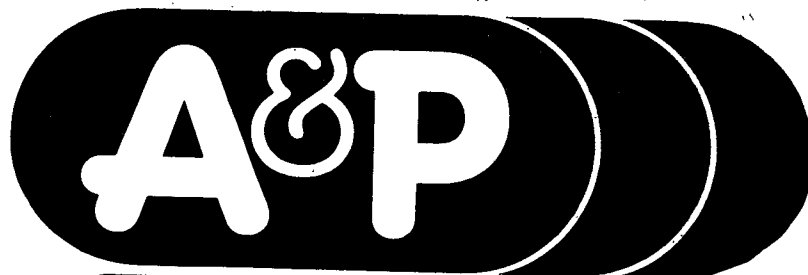

A seasoned rice dish is a tasty accompaniment to the main dish, also, as in this MANDARIN RICE PILAU

2 11 oz. cans Mandarin oranges (reserve the syrup)
2 cups plain, raw rice
1 cup butter (or margarine)
1 fine-chopped onion
12 whole cloves
Small piece of stick cinnamon; 1/2 cup blanched almonds
a tsp. salt, dash of fresh ground pepper
Saute the onion in a half cup of the butter, add the rice and cook for about five minutes. Set aside.

Add the syrup from the oranges to enough boiling water to make four cups, pour over the rice and add the cinnamon, cloves, and salt. Cover and simmer a half hour or so, until the liquid is absorbed, then remove the cloves and cinnamon from the cooked rice. Add the pepper, brown the almonds in the remaining butter. Add the mandarin segments and almonds to the rice - and a half cup of raisins also, if you wish. Toss all together, and serve with broiled chicken or pork chops or whatever.

PRC to offer remedial work

Enoch Seal Jr. academic dean at Pearl River College announced the possibility of a Poplarville campus basic studies' curriculum starting the 1980 fall semester.

Federal funds have been applied for to hire teachers for the special courses which would stress basics in English, math, and reading.

This new program would require testing of all incoming freshmen. Those found to enroll in the basic studies curriculum.

Each basic course would be considered as non-transferable credit. For example, a student may take each of the three courses and receive three hours credit for each, however, the credit cannot be transferred to any other college or university.

"These basic courses will prepare the students who are having difficulty in these areas so they will be better able to cope with the more advanced courses they will encounter during their college careers," said Seal.

Activities for the day included classroom and tutoring station visits, question and answer sessions with parents, staff members, and students, and a tour of the school facilities.

Aides visiting the school were Lois Wiltz, Vivian Rosetti, Beryl Kidd, Gloria Crowder, Maxine Jaquith, Connie Gonzales, Carol Monti, Barbara Davis, and Carolyn Adams.

The Senior Job Registry is a spin-off of the Senior Aides Program and is locally sponsored by the Southern Mississippi Planning and Development District.

The National contractor for the Senior Aides Program is the National Council of Senior Citizens (NCSC).

The Senior Aides Program is funded through the Dept. of Labor and the Southern Mississippi Planning and Development District. Frances Adkins is the director.

All active senior citizens who want to supplement income are invited to register. Applications will not be taken over the phone.

All merchants, business people or private citizens of this area which have a vacancy in your organization or need help in your homes, the service would be most grateful to be given the chance to help find a suitable person to fill your needs.

The Senior Job Registry in Waveland is the second Registry to open on the Gulf Coast. The first office was opened in 1977, and is located in the courthouse in Biloxi (432-5178).

Due to the overwhelming success of the Biloxi office, the Senior Aides Program under the direction of Frances Adkins decided to open a branch office in the west end of the Gulf Coast.

Waveland senior Job Registry reports success

The Senior Citizens Job Registry office located in the Waveland Community Center on Coleman Avenue, opened its doors in July, 1979. From the time the office opened it has attempted to help the "Older Workers" of the Gulf Coast find employment.

ANSWERING QUESTIONS—Hancock County Sheriff Ronald A. Peterson, left, County Youth Court Referee Michael Haas, Andrews Wilkinson, president of the Bay St. Louis Local, American Federation of Teachers; and Dr. William Bradford of Waveland answer questions during a drug symposium at the City-County Library Thursday night. About 60 people attended the informational event, co-sponsored by the Bay St. Louis AFT and the North Bay Elementary Parent-Teacher Organization. The three speakers described their part in bringing drug abusers to justice and medical aspects of the illicit substances. (Staff photo-Rich Adams)

Hancock County. In my department we dread Spring, because that is when the plants are started," Peterson told the audience.

He said the tallest marijuana plant he has seen was found off Hwy. 43 in the Catapahula Community measuring 16 feet tall.

The sheriff explained that possession of less than an ounce of marijuana is now a misdemeanor in Mississippi, and the strictest penalty is similar to a traffic ticket.

Peterson displayed a number of water pipes, explaining that it is legal to purchase a pipe of this sort. "The pipe becomes paraphenalia when it is used with marijuana," Peterson said.

"There is presently a bill in the legislature which will ban sales of paraphenalia. In law enforcement we consider this an ideal bill," the sheriff added.

The third display contained a number of clips and cigarette papers used in smoking marijuana, again explaining the items are not illegal until used with marijuana.

"The clips are used to smoke all the marijuana cigarette. When we smoke a regular cigarette, we get down to the butt and put it out. The marijuana smokers don't want to waste any of their cigarettes, so they use these clips so they won't burn their little fingers," Peterson said.

"The biggest problem in the county is with marijuana smokers. We are getting bigger, and as we do we will probably experience problems with harder drugs," he continued.

"Perhaps the most dangerous widely-used drug today is PCP, an animal tranquilizer called Angel Dust," Peterson explained.

"Years back, LSD (lysergic acid diethylamide), a hallucinogen, was very popular. I feel PCP has taken the place of LSD," he added.

Peterson passed a lid of marijuana and glass jar of the substance among the audience, allowing the audience to experience the smell of the plant.

Peterson also displayed a five-pound compressed 'brick' and 2.5 pound 'kilo' of marijuana, which he says is the most common method of packing the substance for transporting marijuana.

Dr. Bradford, an emergency room specialist at the Singing River Hospital in Pascagoula, then told the audience of the different types of drugs and the medical effect on the user's body.

Bradford attributed the increase of drug usage among youth to a generation gap caused by a breakdown of communications.

The doctor said the biggest problem with drugs is a 'poly-drug problem' in which people mix drugs with one another.

"In 1971 the most abused drug was heroin, and now methedone, which is used to cure heroin addicts of their dependency, is a popular drug causing deaths," Bradford said.

Bradford said alcohol is the most abused and most popular drug in the United States.

"Scare tactics must be fought with level-headed counseling and rehabilitation. We must recognize the problems at face value," Bradford said.

He compared drug abuse to an infectious disease, but noted the host seeks the agent in drug abuse, adding the vector is the pusher.

The doctor cited alcohol as the most drug which is most deadly, followed by tobacco and then hard drugs.

"It is estimated that 25 million people smoke marijuana," Bradford told the listeners.

"Marijuana is the least debilitating drug of all, however," he noted.

Bradford said PCP is becoming a 'common problem' among drug users, adding that taken in large dosages, the drug will cause "seizures and intensity individual psychosis in borderline cases."

He said the power of suggestion in street drug sales is 'remarkable,' adding that analysis of street drugs has proven most supposedly pure marijuana is "full of garbage."

He then explained common household supplies which may be used as stimulants, such as freon, glue, and pressurized cans of cooking oil.

Haas then discussed the judicial action taken by his court in dealing with juvenile drug abusers.

"First the investigative officer must determine what evidence is available and bring the information to a court officer, who reviews the information and files a report," Haas told the audience.

The evidence then goes to the county prosecutor, who makes a decision whether the evidence will stand up in a hearing, the youth court referee said.

If the evidence is sufficient, the court issues a summons to the child's guardian, who is advised a defense attorney will be necessary, he continued.

On the date of the hearing, the youth, his guardian, and the defense attorney will appear before the court, where the youth will either admit or deny the charges against him, Haas explained.

If the youth denies the charges, his case will be heard similar to an adult trial. Before punitive actions are taken if the youth is found to be guilty, Haas said a social survey must be made of the family and school life of the child.

After the disposition hearing, the court will do one of eight punishments:

—Dismissal with warning;
—Impose a fine, with a maximum of $300 penalty;
—Require restitution for any damage of property;

—Place the youth on probation;

—Obtain drug counseling;

—A citizen may volunteer to work with the child to overcome his drug problem;

—Compel the youth to attend sessions at a mental health facility; or —Commit the youth to a training school or try as an adult in criminal court.

"There is no substitute for firm parental communication. Parents, assert your parental authority," Haas said.

"Your child craves and needs discipline. Above all, be sure God is part of your family life," he added.

Andrews Wilkinson, president of the Local AFT, thanked Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School Board Members Maurice Singleton and James Ginn for being present at the meeting.

The three speakers answered questions from the audience during a question and answer forum.

NUCLEAR POLLUTION
Nevada ranchers and residents tell the stories of what nuclear testing has done to their families, their livestock and their livelihoods in "Nevada Fallout: The Hot Years" at 9:30 p.m., Wednesday, March 26, on the Mississippi ETV Network. In 1951, above-ground nuclear testing set Nevada's course in the history of the search for nuclear power and its use. Since that time, 539 tests have been conducted, 126 of them above ground; 129 tests of the total number conducted have spread radiation to off-site locations. Producer Russ McNeil travels into desolate areas north of the test site and chats with ranchers there who report that they believe that they have been used as human guinea pigs.

Destructive pine beetle moves across Mississippi

The highly destructive Southern Pine Beetle (Dendroctonus frontalis) is continuing to spread westward from the eastern half of Mississippi and is reported to be at epidemic levels in 118 counties, according to the Mississippi Forestry Commission.

Rand Riedrich, Hancock County forester, said aerial surveys indicate that the epidemic area now extends from the Alabama state line west to Madison and Holmes counties and from Oktibbeha County south to Jasper and Clarke counties.

The advent of warmer spring weather is expected to bring a sharp increase in beetle activity and spread.

The Southern Pine Beetle is a tiny black to brown insect about the size of a grain of rice.

It kills by attacking in large numbers, boring in, and laying eggs under the bark. The eggs later hatch and become larvae that tunnel in generally "S" shaped channels around the tree's cambium layer, thus severing the food supply to its crown.

Southern Pine Beetles multiply rapidly and spread quickly to adjacent trees. The mild winter has played a big factor in the increased activity of the dreaded beetle. Dr. Richard Collins, director of the commission's insect-disease control department stated, "Landowners noticing fading and yellowing of needles on their pines should suspect a bark beetle and seek the aid of a forester in making positive identification."

He added that Southern Pine Beetles are most often attracted to weakened tree stands that have not been managed properly, or trees that are under various forms of physical stress.

Foresters have found that overcrowded stands of pines in moist locations seem particularly prone to attack by bark beetles.

Collins said that the best thing for landowner's with infested timber to do is to get the affected trees salvaged as quickly as possible.

Although most infested areas are only a few acres in size in the epidemic area, smaller areas should nevertheless be treated by cutting the trees and leaving them in the woods if salvage is not feasible.

About half of the infested timber was salvaged in 1979. Hancock County landowners should contact Riedrich for aid in choosing trees to be removed.

The Forestry Commission can also help landowners find buyers for the infested trees.

Home economist offers income tax advice

YOUR INCOME TAX DOLLARS
By SHIRLEY G. ROBINSON
Extension Home Economist

Before you prepare your return, you need to decide if you are required to file a return which forms to use, whether to return a joint or separate return with your spouse and consider tax changes. Assemble all your records and figures for 1979. Who must file a return: basically, a single person if his or her gross income was $3,300.00 or more ($4,300 or more if 65 or older); married persons filing a joint return if their combined gross income was $5,400 or more ($6,400 or more if either spouse was 65 or older at the end of 1979; $7,400 or more if both spouses were 65 or older at the end of 1979.)

You must either file short Form 1040A or regular Form 1040. If you want to itemize your deductions, you must file Form 1040. Figure both ways and choose the form that meets your needs.

The deduction for personal exemptions is $100. The increase also applies to the extra exemption for age and blindness. But the general tax credit ($35 per exemption, in addition to the deduction) has expired and can't be taken on your 1979 return.

The zero bracket amount has been raised from $2,200 for a single person and head of households to $2,300 from $3,200 to $3,400 for married persons filing jointly and qualifying widow(er)s with a dependent child. For married persons filing separately, it has been increased from $1,600 to $1,700.

The alternate capital gains tax of 25 percent on the first $50,000 of long term capital gain is no longer applicable.

The current 15 percent add to minimum tax continues except that it no longer applies to long term capital gains and excess itemized deductions. These are now subject to a new alternative minimum tax. Unemployment compensation may be taxable if you received such payments in 1979.

The political contributions credit has been doubled, but there is no longer an option to deduct such contributions. You can claim one half of such contributions, but not more than $50 ($100 on a joint return) as a direct offset to tax.

You may no longer take an itemized deduction for state and local gasoline taxes. For business use, you can deduct actual expenses (taxes, fuel, depreciation, etc.) or you can take a standard mileage deduction of 18.5 cents per mile for the first 15,000 miles and 10 cents thereafter. The standard mileage rate for charitable, medical moving purposes is up to eight percent.

Self employed persons can get a better break on the maximum tax on personal service income. The 30 percent of net profits limitation on personal service income (eligible for maximum tax benefit) of unincorporated business where capital is material income producing factor no longer applies. The only limitation is that the amount be reasonable compensation and not exceed the net profit of the business.

A simplified employee pension plan, new for 1979, is intended as an alternative to regular and more cumbersome retirement plans.

This is an individual retirement act (IRA annuity) set up by the employee to which the employer contributes. The regular IRA rules apply, except that $7,500 is the maximum contribution. The earned income tax credit was increased for 1979.

The ceiling is now $10,000 and the maximum credit is $500. Some taxpayers may have gotten advance payments in 1979, and must file a return if income was below minimum levels.

DEN LEADER BETTY SMITH supervises Cub Scouts Tony Mallini, Cedric Smith, and Ronnie Peterson II in clean-up operations at the Baptist Church on Main Street in Bay St. Louis. Cub Scout Pack 207 did the cleaning as a community service.

The following books are now available at any branch of the Hancock County Library System:
BRECHER by Dan McCall. A vigorous, engaging and effective novelization of the shocking Henry Ward Beecher trial—a man who was one of America's most famous public saints and also one of our most flamboyant private sinners.
THE POPE OF GREENWICH VILLAGE by Vincent Patrick. Acutely realistic yet wondrously funny, THE POPE OF GREENWICH VILLAGE captures the speech, the scams, the flavor, the dread, and the humor of ordinary people scrambling to make it big in a neighborhood that prides itself on creating and enforcing its own laws.
BLACK ANGUS by Newton Thronburg. A man leaves his cushy job in the city to create a new and more "meaningful" life in the country—whereupon everything goes wrong and he is driven finally to attempting to save his ranch by rustling his own cattle.

HELPING AT DELIVERY TIME
Although most cats and dogs are perfectly capable of delivering their young without assistance, some timely aid from the pet owner or veterinarian is often helpful. Here are a few suggestions to remember at your pet's delivery time, which will be approximately 63 days after conception. Expect your dog to begin labor within a few hours if she suddenly refuses to eat, becomes restless and looks for shelter under tables and chairs. Your pregnant cat will also wander from room to room, and head for the nest-like area she may have prepared in a closet, open drawer or box. Deliveries do not follow any set pattern. The newborn may arrive ten minutes apart, or sixty minutes apart. Whatever the case, if your pet has not had her offspring after several hours of continuous labor, she needs professional help.

North Bay cubs cited at annual banquet here

Pack 207, Cub Scouts of Bay St. Louis, were busy the weekend of February 23 cleaning up the church yard of the Baptist Church on Main Street in Bay St. Louis. On February 29 the Cub Scout Blue and Gold Banquet was held at North Bay Elementary School. All the boys were presented their Wolf Badges and are working toward earning their Bear Badges. A covered dish dinner was the treat of the night which was prepared by the mothers of the Cubs. Mr. Rogers James, Principal of North Bay Elementary School, was present and gave the blessing of the food after the flag ceremony and all said the pledge of allegiance. Miss Andrea Ring, Cub Master, presented the Wolf Badges and a charter to Mr. James for display in the Principal's main office. Pack 207 was rechartered in October of 1979 with North Bay Elementary School as the main charter and Pack 207 is sponsored by the VFW Post 3253 in Bay St. Louis. Cub Scouts receiving Wolf Badges were: Den 1 - Neil Breau, Tony Mallini and Michael Richards and Den Leader Helen Mallini; Den 2: Danny Bangs, Noah Hollis, Ronnie Peterson II, Cedric Smith and Den Leader Betty Smith. Pack 207 marched in the St. Patrick Day Parade on March 15. They will also participate in the Diamondhead Car Derby on April 12. Among the spring blossoms are azaleas, including Formosa and Pride of Mobile, camellias, redbud, dogwood and pansies. Rosedown, built in 1835 at the height of the golden years of the cotton kingdom along the lower Mississippi, has always been noted for its classical gardens which were inspired by Versailles. The plantation empire was created by Daniel Turnbull and his wife, Martha Hilliard Turnbull, a member of the famous Barrow dynasty of West Feliciana Parish. Following each tour of the continent they added plots of formal areas to their Louisiana wilderness garden. Not even Colonial Williamsburg had gardens as extensive as those of Rosedown. Rosedown was purchased in 1856 by the late Catherine Fondren Underwood of Houston, Texas. She wanted to restore both house and gardens in order to save one of the great gardens of the 19th century. It was also her wish that Rosedown should reflect life in West Feliciana Parish as it was before the War Between the States. The story of her adventure in restoration is told in a new color book, REFLECTIONS OF ROSEDOWN, which is available in book stores through Louisiana State University Press, Baton Rouge, LA, as well as at Rosedown. A film of Mrs. Underwood's restoration is available through the Rosedown office. For information, write Rosedown, Drawer M, St. Francisville, LA 70775. Telephone 504-524-8407.

YOU AND YOUR PET
By Robert L. Stear, D.V.M., Manager of Veterinary Services, Norden Laboratories
If the young arrive in too rapid succession, the mother may become dazed or overlook one or two. Then it is up to you to administer primary care to some of the newborn. After the puppy's mouth and nose are cleared of mucus, the umbilical cord should be cut an inch or two from the puppy, and a knot tied near the base of the cord with thread or dental floss. After the puppy is gently dried with a towel, it can be returned to the mother. Occasionally a puppy is slow to start breathing. If this happens, provide massage with a towel, then swing the puppy gently, head downward to try to clear the air passages. Often it is necessary to work on a puppy for several minutes before it begins breathing. As the puppies arrive, make sure you note the delivery of one afterbirth per pup. A retained afterbirth can be the source of a serious infection in the uterus, so all afterbirths should be accounted for. After the puppies are delivered and the wet bedding is removed, place the puppies alongside their mother so they can begin nursing. If you see that the mother cannot accommodate all the puppies simultaneously, call your veterinarian immediately to discuss a hand-feeding schedule for part of the litter.

Decorating Tips
We're well into the twentieth century—eighty percent of the way. But surprisingly enough, furniture styles are not dominated by futuristic or "way-out" designs. In fact, much of what is being shown in stores and marketed both by new furniture manufacturers and used furniture dealers are eighteenth and nineteenth century styles. And they're not being bought by our parents, either. It's the younger consumers who have headed up the renaissance in these older styles. One reason these young consumers have rediscovered the old styles is quality. The quality was inherent in pieces made 100 or 200 years ago—they were crafted of genuine hardwoods and veneers, and lovingly finished by hand. And the manufacturers who are reproducing these pieces are trying to be as faithful in their copies as possible. So we now have brand new furniture pieces on the market in beautiful hardwood finishes, that are sometimes hard to tell from their antique ancestors. The woods used in these pieces are cherry, walnut, oak and mahogany, to name a few, and the finishes tend to be the warm browns and burgundy tones. The formal look generated by these elegant old styles is just what the decorating doctor ordered to restore peace and harmony in today's hectic lifestyles. It's not just a matter of nostalgia, either. Elegance and warmth has replaced the plastic, frenetic look popular twenty years ago, and as consumers become more conscious of value, and more aware of quality, cheap furniture becomes more expensive. The more well-educated we become in our buying habits, the easier it is to see why good quality is so important. Furniture that can last a lifetime, such as hardwood furniture, is obviously more valuable than furniture that has to be replaced. And when the beauty and craftsmanship of yesterday is duplicated in modern production, that makes it a real buy. So when you're looking for new furniture, don't be surprised to see newly created hardwood pieces from the past. And don't be surprised at the tug on the subconscious to buy them. You're just recognizing quality when you see it. Any questions on hardwood? Write to Linda Forrest, Hardwood Institute, Suite 1920, 230 Park Ave., New York, NY 10017.

For communicants, family

St. Clare Parish conducts workshop

St. Clare Parish recently held a Family Workshop for first Communicants and their families.

The purpose of this meeting was to involve the whole family in preparation for the reception of Holy Communion and provide an experience of family whereby the Eucharist would become more meaningful not only to the child, but also to the immediate family and parish family.

The first hour consisted of a lecture on three levels reflecting the Eucharist as a meal, a sacrifice, a celebration, a sharing, and the vital role the Eucharist has in our daily living.

Sister Marie Charles, D.C., of the Biloxi Diocesan Education Office, spoke to the First Communion Class, while Monsignor John Scanlon, pastor, spoke to the parents and relatives, and sister Jane, O.P. spoke to the other children in the family.

During the second hour each family engaged in an activity of symbol and banner making which illustrated family love for the Eucharist. A celebration was enjoyed as each family shared a meal together thus witnessing to the theme of Eucharistic love in their lives.

It was hoped that this type of family experience would help all who participated grow in love for the liturgy of the Eucharist and family sharing.

FAMILY WORKSHOP—Sister Marie Charles, D.C., of the Biloxi Diocesan Education Office, recently participated in a Family Workshop at St. Clare Parish in Waveland, in preparation for First Eucharist. Sister's presentation helped the children to make a parallel between the Eucharist as a meal and the sharing of a family meal as they prepared the table of the Lord. (Photo courtesy of St. Clare's)

Lutherans to hear 'Christ In The Passover' program

What do the Jewish Passover and Jesus' Last Supper have in common? Rachmiel Silverman, staff evangelist with Jews for Jesus, will answer that question as he presents "Christ in the Passover" at the Lutheran Church of the Pines, 412 US-90, Waveland Saturday, at 7 p.m.

The purpose of the "Christ in the Passover" presentation is to enhance the Christian understanding of the New Testament by showing a Jewish background for the Communion celebration. Ancient and modern Jewish customs are discussed and described with an emphasis on the aspect of redemption that Christ accomplished at Calvary, a church spokesman reported.

A table is set with traditional Jewish Passover items, including representative foods which are explained, but not eaten.

Members of the Jews for Jesus group have given this demonstration in more than one thousand different churches.

RACHMIEL SILVERMAN

Originally written in 1956 by Moishe Rosen, the founder and leader of Jews for Jesus, it was abstracted from the writings of the former rabbi, Leopold Cohn, who came to Christ in 1894 and died in 1936. Rosen contends that some of the most important elements of Christian doctrine, such as the Trinity, the principle of Substitutionary Atonement, and Salvation through a personal relationship with the Messiah, are implied in the Seder (Passover feast) as observed by Orthodox Jews even today.

The Jews for Jesus organization has a national staff of 80-most known for their high visibility evangelism.

They've distributed millions of Gospel pamphlets on street corners across the United States, pamphlets with titles such as, "Passover, or it Shouldn't Even Happen to an Egyptian" and "Jesus Made Me Kosher."

"The response to our literature has been lively," says Silverman, "Especially in New York City, the home of 2½ million of my Jewish people."

With this in view, Jews for Jesus has decided to expand its program for New York in the coming months. "We are presently looking for the right facility in the heart of New York from which to minister," says Mr. Silverman.

"We're sending our best missionaries to work in the Big Apple and we're expecting God to work in a special way," he continued.

Those attending the special program at Lutheran Church of the Pines will have an opportunity to learn more about what Jews for Jesus has planned by way of evangelism nationwide. The program is open to the general public.

Mormons outline goals of new meeting times

A schedule combining Sunday Mormon meetings into a three hour block, has been introduced throughout the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints.

The church-wide initiation of the program follows several months of pilot studies in which selected congregations tried variations of the program - with marked success.

The new schedule groups Sacrament, Sunday School, Melchizedek and Aaronic Priesthood, Relief Society, Young Women and Primary Meetings into a specifically divided three hour time block.

Ten minute breaks separate the meetings. Local leaders are being given options of how to arrange the meetings. Branch President Daniel Sones of the Waveland Branch of the LDS Church has announced the following schedule for meetings of the local congregation each Sunday:

9 to 9:50 a.m. - Aaronic and Melchizedek Priesthood meetings. Relief society Primary and Young Women classes

10:00 a.m. to 10:40 a.m. - Sunday School

10:50 a.m. to Noon - Sacrament Meeting

According to Sones, major objectives of the new schedule include:

1. Helping every Latter-day saint home become a place where family members love to be, where they can enrich their lives and find mutual love, support, appreciation, and encouragement.

2. Emphasizing home-centered Sabbath activities.

3. Making more flexible a week day activity program for all members.

4. Reducing the amount of travel by church members and providing opportunities for family members to travel together and participate in church activities.

5. Conserving energy resources and reduce the nonessential costs required for members to participate in church activities.

"Monday night continues to be reserved for Family Home Evening, and Boy Scouting will continue to be a part of the Aaronic Priesthood program with sufficient weekly activities to provide for appropriate advancement," he noted.

Visitors and investigators are welcome at all church meetings, and anyone desiring to know more about the church can call 467-7875, Sones reported.

Lay Carmelites meet at Martinolich home

The Secular Order of Discalced Carmelites met Sunday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Charline Martinolich with Mrs. Lillian Carver, president, conducting the business session.

Rev. Andrew Masters, S.V.D., spiritual director, gave a conference on The Apostolate of the Laity. The meeting closed with vespers and a prayer to St. Joseph.

Members from Biloxi, Bay St. Louis and Waveland attended.

The next meeting will be Sunday, April 13.

There's an Answer!

by Norman Vincent Peale and Ruth Stafford Peale

Wants a "new start?"

Q. I am a divorced woman of 25. My life is one of constant grief over the loss of my husband. I love him dearly. I do feel he loves me also but is interested in other people and his "free" life. We have tried to reunite, but we cannot seem to forget our past and our differences regarding marriage and husband and wife "roles." I desperately want our marriage to reunite with another ceremony to show a "new start." It seems I am being too forward and insistent. Should I leave him alone and try to make a life of my own for my daughter and me?

A. If your husband went so far as to legally divorce you, he wanted to break off the marriage. He may love you, as you say, but it's evident that he did not love you enough to stay with you. We would hope the marriage might be reinstated, but when you have exhausted every effort to resume, you just have to go forward on your own. In fact, if you accept the situation in a dignified and friendly manner with no nagging or insistence, that in itself might restore your ex-husband's love on a stronger basis.

We are sending you our booklet, 12 Steps to a Happy and Successful Life, which is free to any reader of this column. Write to us at Box 500, Pawling, N.Y. 12564.

Weekend drunk

Q. My husband is an every-night-after-work and every-weekend drinker. If there is anything to celebrate he will win at raffles, everything. It's so bad my nerves are shot. The kids, ages 1 to 4, just scream when we fight. He drives on the lawn, digging it up when he's drunk. He says he works and deserves to get drunk anytime he wants. I love him and I hate to get a divorce, but it seems the only way to keep my sanity and my kid's nerves calm. Please help me.

A. Your husband may possibly be alcoholic. We suggest you contact a member of Alcoholics Anonymous and ask advice and help. This man's uncontrolled and violent reactions under the influence of alcohol and his every night and every weekend drinking suggests that he needs attention rather than abandonment, tough as it is for you.

Christ Episcopal french students present play

The fourth grade French class at Christ Episcopal Day School recently presented "Les Trois Petits Cochons-The Three Little Pigs" to the student body and their parents.

Shannon Williams was Groin Groin, Kim Coggins was Brou Brou, Nicole Montagnet was Snuf Snuf, and Hillary

Harris was Le Loup.

The other students in the class read the dramatization. They are: Frank Burdette, Nancy Drury, Stephanie Ewing, Callie Gottsche, Catherine Hayward, Alex Helwig, Annabel Jamison, Jack Kilby, Paul Montjoy, Michael Moody, Page Murphy, Robert Parker, Cody Riess, Suzannah Shellnot, Donnie Underwood, Michael Vegas, Renee Weatherly, Eric Zala, and Catherine Smith
